Q & A

Judy Blume

Her new novel In the Unlikely Event is her first for adults in 17 years

What made you write an adult book now?

Because the story came to me. Nothing has come to me in a flash that way.

Of all the novels you've written, do you have a favorite?

It's always the newest one, so right now In the Unlikely Event is very special to me. It's also because I believe it's my last long novel. I'm 77; I've written a lot of books. I think I've said what I want to say.

Say it isn't so, Judy!

I'm not saying I won't write, but the long hours are a lot. I want to have some fun.

—JAIME KING, who says she was bullied as a teen

'Many people think I'm pregnant, but I tell them, "I'm just almost f---ing 30."'

—LADY GAGA, dismissing pregnancy rumors

'It should have been about the contestants instead of being about some nonexistent feud that turned into more ridiculousness, and I would never want to be involved with it again. But everybody else can like it!'

—MARIAH CAREY, criticizing American Idol for the publicized drama between her and fellow judge Nicki Minaj

'That moment when you realize you actually are becoming your mother... #imnotmad.'

—RUMER WILLIS, showing off a "twinning" moment with mom Demi Moore, on Instagram

TRACY MORGAN 'I'M HAPPY TO BE ALIVE'

BY EMILY STROHM

AS HE TALKS ABOUT the fatal car crash last June that left him in a coma for two weeks and in a wheelchair for five months, Tracy Morgan wipes away tears, looking around a room filled with his family and friends. "I am sincerely happy to be alive," he tells PEOPLE. "I just want to get better and become healthy, and I have people who won't let me get down. I use that to my advantage."

The Saturday Night Live and 30 Rock

comedian, 46, says he's

"75 percent" recovered.

"I have my good days, and I have my bad →

"I'm determined to recover," says Morgan (left, in 2010, and, below, leaving a rehab facility in New York City in May). "I just want to get better."

days,” says the father of four, who suffered a traumatic brain injury and a broken leg and ribs when a Walmart tractor-trailer slammed into the back of his limo bus, killing his close friend and fellow comedian James McNair. “Sometimes I feel a little off, and I might not remember things that I usually would have remembered, but I’m doing everything they say to do, and they say I am getting better. So I believe.” Morgan (who settled a lawsuit with Walmart) spends his days in “speech therapy and physical therapy,” says his lawyer Benedict Morelli. “He looks better than he is.”

Morgan can now walk slowly with a cane and shows flashes of his signature humor (“I gotta go back and get that GED on the side,” he jokes of all his time in cognitive therapy). He says his recovery has been constantly challenging. “Therapy isn’t easy,” he says. “Learning how to walk again. Learning how to sit down and stand up, just having the capability that I used to have. But I am determined.” His soon-to-be bride, Megan Wollover, 28, is a major source of motivation. “I want to walk my fiancée down the aisle and play with my little daughter,” he says. “All of those things are what keeps me going.”

‘I TRY NOT TO TAKE ANYTHING FOR GRANTED BECAUSE YOU CAN BE HERE TODAY AND GONE LATER THAT DAY’

Morgan’s Mercedes limo bus was one of six vehicles in the 2014 crash.

There have been more than a few bumps along the way. After Morgan’s release from the hospital, daughter Maven, who turns 2 on July 2, wouldn’t come near him because she was afraid of his wheelchair. Wollover helped him through the tough times. “She’s what I call a rider,” he says. “She rides with me for better or for worse, rich or poor, sick and health; she’s a good girl.” Now Morgan looks at life in a different way. “Happiness is a simple thing. It’s having something to look forward to. I look forward to Maven’s first day of school, to being married, to my son going to college this September. I have a lot to look forward to.”

CATCHING UP WITH CARRIE UNDERWOOD

Three and a half months after giving birth to her son Isaiah, Carrie Underwood is back at work—and already photo-shoot ready! “Having a baby definitely changes your routine, and I have to work around his schedule,” says the singer from the set of the fall campaign of her fitness line, Calia. “Whenever he goes to sleep, I do the things I need to do for myself and make workouts happen when they can.” Underwood, 32, who celebrates her fifth wedding anniversary with Nashville Predators player Mike Fisher July 10, says she is also looking forward to returning to the stage for the first time since becoming a mom: She will be performing at the Grand Ole Opry June 9, CMT Music Awards June 10 and at CMA MusicFest on June 13. “It’s been really nice to be able to focus my attention on Isaiah and our family,” she says. “It’s been really good! But it’s been really nice as well to be creative, working on music, working on Calia. . . I’m excited to get back onstage.”

KIM IS PREGNANT! HER STRUGGLE TO HAVE BABY NO. 2

"They are so grateful," says a source of Kim and Kanye, 38 (at the CFDA Awards on June 1).

Stepping out in a chilly rain to the Council of Fashion Designers of America Awards on June 1, Kim Kardashian West admitted she'd had better evenings. "To be honest, I have the worst morning sickness, day sickness, night sickness," she told reporters as she gamely posed in (what else? She's still Kim) see-through Proenza Schouler alongside husband Kanye West. "And I have a cold now!" But after many months of struggling to conceive a second child, she couldn't be happier. "I'm so grateful to even be pregnant when we didn't think it would ever happen for us," she said. "It is so worth it!"

After plenty of old-fashioned trying ("I've been having sex 500 times a day," she revealed in the season opener of E!'s Keeping Up with the Kardashians) and months of fertility treatments, her dreams have become a reality. "Kim Kardashian West and Kanye West are expecting their second child, due at the end of this year," her rep tells PEOPLE. "They are overjoyed and looking forward to his/her arrival." (It was a momentous week for the family: See page 42 for Caitlyn Jenner's story.) Kim's news was first delivered during a teaser at the end of her show's May 31 episode, which showed her visiting her fertility doctor. "I didn't know that I was going to be so open with [my fertility challenges],” Kardashian West, 34, told Glamour magazine. “But meeting people at my fertility doctor’s office who are going through the same things I’m going through, I thought, ‘Why not share my story? It’s been really emotional.’”

The road to baby No. 2 has already been a difficult one for the reality queen, who was urged by doctors to consider surrogacy because of a complicated delivery the last time around. While carrying daughter North, who turns 2 on June 15, Kardashian West experienced preeclampsia, a potentially dangerous condition in which the blood pressure skyrockets during pregnancy. A source close to Kardashian West says that this time she underwent traditional in vitro fertilization with hormones with no success and ultimately conceived using IVF, but on her natural cycle without hormones. Now “this pregnancy is very different because she’s sick all the time,” says a source close to Kardashian West. “She’s very nauseous and very tired.”

While the couple are “beyond excited,” says the source, they’re also being cautious. In a recent KUWTK episode, Kardashian West said doctors gave her every “worst-case scenario,” including one that included needing a hysterectomy after giving birth again. The source says the pair are expecting a high-risk delivery “but are prepared. It’s been a long road, and they are just so thankful to the doctors because they said she would never conceive again.” The source also says this pregnancy will also likely be Kardashian West’s last because of the complications she’s already experienced. While life as mom to North takes priority these days, she is taking it easy. “She’s trying to rest and doing what she can to not get preeclampsia again, but there’s a chance she might,” says the source. Adds Dr. Lisa Masterson, an OB/GYN (who has not treated Kardashian West): “[Her condition] does tend to repeat itself. The best thing she could do is just be healthy—eat right and exercise.” Meanwhile, “Kanye is beaming! He’s so happy. This is all he wanted,” says the source. And North’s parents are doing their best to help her adjust. “North understands there’s a baby in Mommy’s belly,” says the source. “But she thinks everyone has one!”

Laughter

Vital. It’s the most important thing in my life, undoubtedly. It’s not only key as a comedian but as a human. You need laughter for energy, motivation, everything.

Joke

Difficult. Jokes are hard to write and very technical, and I’ve never been good at one-liners. They’re tricky little beasts.

Prince Harry

My future husband.

I had quite a bizarre interaction with him where I sort of awkwardly flirted with him. Oh, the lovely Harry. I hope he finds love.

Royal Baby

Children. Obviously Harry and I will have lots of royal babies once we’re married—some very tall ones.

America

Exciting. I find it so thrilling and big and bold and wonderful. I lived in D.C. for three years when I was [around] 12 because my dad worked there, and I think I fell in love with it then.

Crush

Matthew Perry.

I used to get asked in interviews all the time, “Who’s your crush?” I guess I said his name too much. When we spoke, he said, “Thank you for all of the publicity.” —JACQUELINE ANDRIAKOS

JASON DERULO What My Playlist Says About Me

The 'Want to Want Me' singer—whose album Everything Is 4 is out now—explains what the music he listens to reveals about him

My headphones are my constant companions because I'm always on the road. When I am flying from city to city and across the globe, music is my escape and my inspiration. I always look for different influences: I listen to Elvis a lot, but I study Top 40—I like Jeremih, Beyoncé, David Guetta and Fetty Wap. I also devote a lot of time critiquing my own music. There's nothing like the feeling I get when I record a song, listen to it back and know it is going to be another No. 1. That's why I don't make time for anything but writing, listening and working out. And, of course, women! —REPORTED BY J.N.

It was one of the most devastating events ever on the unforgiving peak:

In May 1996 eight climbers died on Mount Everest after a traffic jam of summiters was caught by a storm. Everest, opening Sept. 18, revisits the tragedy (which was also recounted in survivor Jon Krakauer's 1997 bestseller Into Thin Air). "I wanted the adventure, the adversity and the friendships that shooting this story would provide," says Jason Clarke, who plays guide Rob Hall. "I got them." Clarke, along with Jake Gyllenhaal (left, as guide Scott Fischer), Josh Brolin and Sam Worthington, trekked in Nepal and the Italian Alps in -35° weather. (Keira Knightley and Robin Wright play wives back home.) The movie, says director Baltasar Kormákur, explores the (sometimes fatal) idea that "anyone can climb Mount Everest." —ALYNDA WHEAT

OUT OF THE STORM

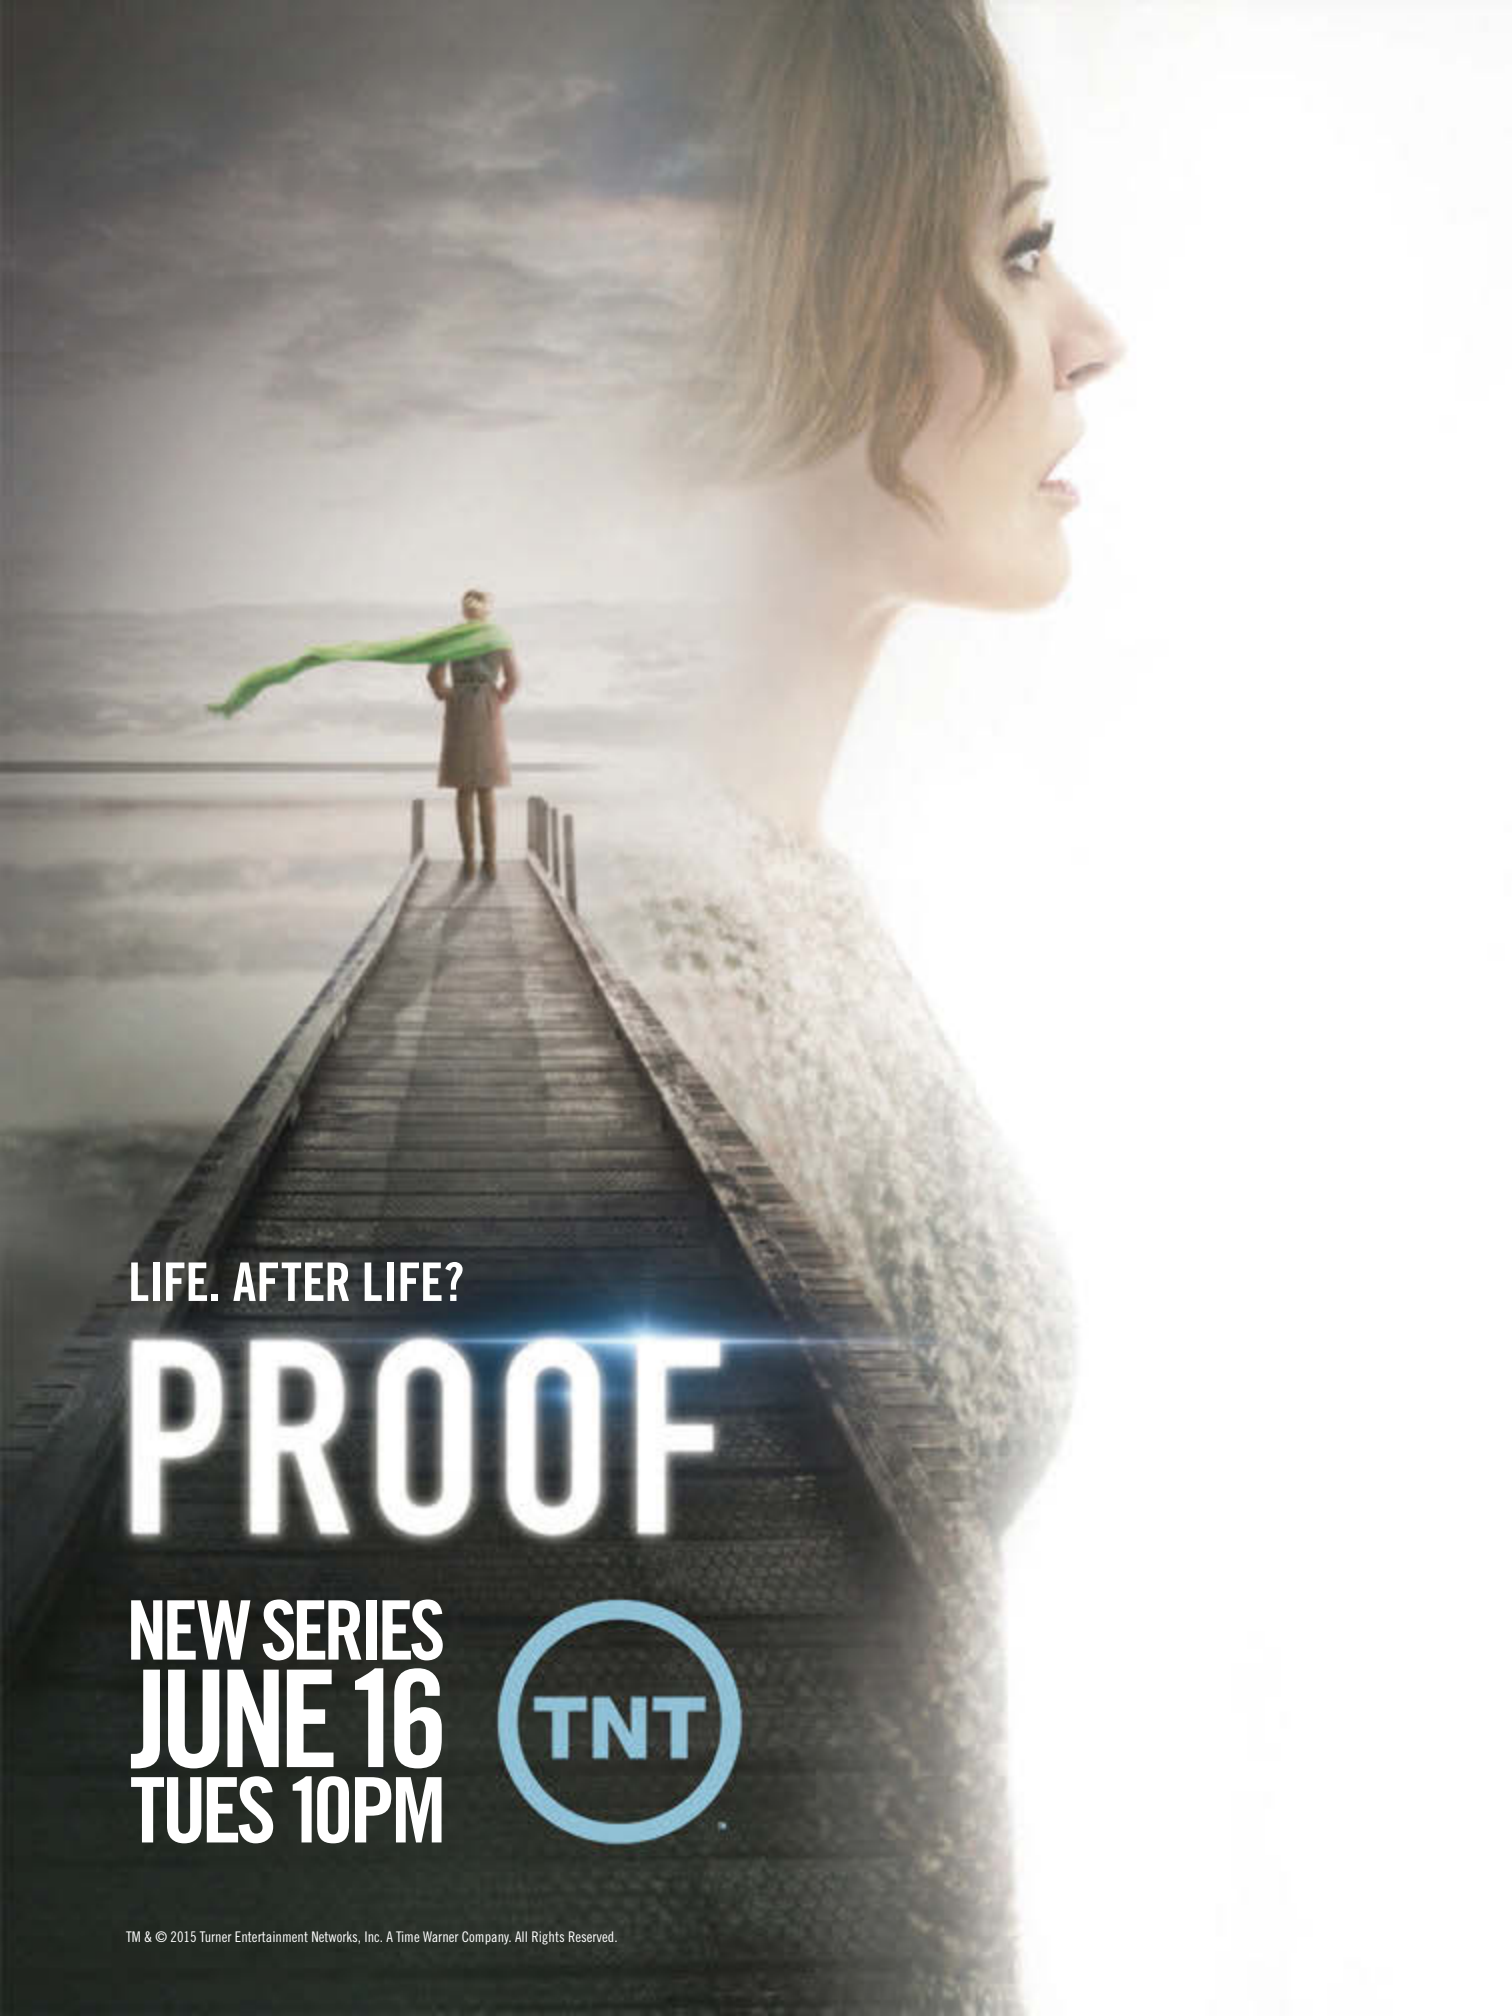

Clarke and his costars faced altitude sickness and avalanche warnings, and "there was the danger of losing your nose," says Kormákur, who kept cast and crew on frostbite watch. But he welcomed the hardship. "It was very grueling. But at the same time, it was the experience we were making the film about, so I'm quite grateful for it."

ON TOP OF THE WORLD

Brolin, as Hall's client Beck Weathers, pushes on during a sunny day. "It can get quite warm and nice" on Everest, says Kormákur. But "it changes in a heartbeat, and you're just freezing cold... thinking, 'Why the hell did I take this job?'"

More Duggar Drama

As the family's dark secrets are revealed, the 19 Kids and Counting stars face backlash and an uncertain future on TV

More than 20 advertisers have pulled out. Rerun episodes have been shelved. But 19 Kids and Counting is still not officially canceled weeks after shocking allegations surfaced that Josh Duggar, 27, molested five girls when he was a teenager. (He admitted the misconduct to his parents in 2002, but the family did not notify law enforcement at the time, according to a police report. He told PEOPLE last month, "I acted inexcusably.") A source close to the Duggars tells PEOPLE that TLC is considering refocusing the show on sisters Jill Dillard, 24, and Jessa Seewald, 22, and their growing broods. (The network has not commented.) Meanwhile, the devoutly religious reality stars' pastor Dr. Ronnie Floyd is standing behind them. "Everyone does wrong... and it's completely unacceptable. But I'm thankful, whether it's him or any other one, that I serve a God who can forgive everything," Floyd told PEOPLE. Yet the Duggars have lost at least one prominent ally: Republican presidential candidate Rick Santorum, whom they campaigned for in 2012, told Good Morning America, "I was sickened by it."

Chronic Idiopathic Constipation (CIC)

“I’VE TRIED LAXATIVES, BUT SOONER OR LATER,
THE CONSTIPATION COMES BACK LIKE A PILE OF BRICKS.”

Proactively manage your recurring symptoms with LINZESS®

If you’re more than occasionally constipated, you may need something other than laxatives. Maybe it’s time to talk to your doctor about your chronic constipation symptoms, and ask about LINZESS, a once-daily capsule approved for adults to help manage Chronic Idiopathic Constipation. “Chronic” means the constipation is long-lasting or keeps coming back. “Idiopathic” means the cause is unknown. LINZESS works differently from laxatives. It is thought to work in two ways: by helping to calm pain-sensing nerves*, and by accelerating bowel movements. LINZESS may relieve your symptoms by allowing you to have more frequent and complete bowel movements that are easier to pass.

Bottom line, if your chronic constipation symptoms keep coming back, ask your doctor about LINZESS today.

*This was seen in animal studies and the relevance to humans is not known.

Who is LINZESS for?

Prescription LINZESS® (linaclotide) is for adults with CIC.

It is not known if LINZESS is safe and effective in children.

IMPORTANT RISK INFORMATION

- Do not give LINZESS to children who are under 6 years of age. It may harm them.
- You should not give LINZESS to children 6 to 17 years of age. It may harm them.
- Do not take LINZESS if a doctor has told you that you have a bowel blockage (intestinal obstruction).

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.FDA.gov/medwatch or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Before you take LINZESS, tell your doctor:

- If you have any other medical conditions.
- If you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if LINZESS will harm your unborn baby.
- If you are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. It is not known if LINZESS passes into your breast milk.
- About all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Side Effects

LINZESS can cause serious side effects, including diarrhea, the most common side effect, which can sometimes be severe. Diarrhea often begins within the first 2 weeks of LINZESS treatment. Stop taking LINZESS and call your doctor right away if you get severe diarrhea during treatment with LINZESS.

Other common side effects of LINZESS include gas, stomach-area (abdominal) pain, swelling, or a feeling of fullness or pressure in your abdomen (distension). Tell your doctor if you have any side effect that bothers you or that does not go away. These are not all the possible side effects of LINZESS. For more information, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

In addition, call your doctor or go to the nearest hospital emergency room right away if you develop unusual or severe stomach-area (abdominal) pain, especially if you also have bright red, bloody stools or black stools that look like tar.

What is LINZESS?

LINZESS is a prescription medication used in adults to treat irritable bowel syndrome with constipation (IBS-C) and a type of constipation called chronic idiopathic constipation (CIC). “Idiopathic” means the cause of the constipation is unknown.

It is not known if LINZESS is safe and effective in children.

What is the most important information I should know about LINZESS?

- Do not give LINZESS to children who are under 6 years of age. It may harm them.
- You should not give LINZESS to children 6 to 17 years of age. It may harm them.

Who should not take LINZESS?

- Do not give LINZESS to children who are under 6 years of age.
- Do not take LINZESS if a doctor has told you that you have a bowel blockage (intestinal obstruction).

What should I tell my doctor before taking LINZESS?

Before you take LINZESS, tell your doctor:

- If you have any other medical conditions.
- If you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if LINZESS will harm your unborn baby.
- If you are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. It is not known if LINZESS passes into your breast milk. Talk with your doctor about the best way to feed your baby, if you take LINZESS.
- About all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins and herbal supplements.

How should I take LINZESS?

- Take LINZESS exactly as your doctor tells you to take it.
- Take LINZESS one time each day on an empty stomach, at least 30 minutes before your first meal of the day.
- Swallow LINZESS capsules whole. Do not break or chew the capsules.
- If you miss a dose, skip the missed dose. Just take the next dose at your regular time. Do not take 2 doses at the same time.

the day.

No. 1 Spy

MOVIE COMEDY Step aside, James Bond—Moneypenny's got this. McCarthy goes full-on secret-agent woman in this raucous comedy that lets her shoot off her gun and her mouth. She plays Susan Cooper, a CIA analyst assisting superspy Bradley Fine (Jude Law), who wildly undervalues her. When a plan to locate a nuke goes awry, Susan heads into the field. The script sends her to Paris and Budapest, where she spars hilariously with Bulgarian baddie Rayna Boyanov (Rose Byrne) and rogue spy Rick Ford (Jason Statham), while leveling assassins. Don't go poking for plot holes and credibility issues; you'll ruin the fun. Besides, it's nice to see a desk jockey ride off into the sunset. (June 5/R)

No. 2 TV REALITY Ben Lehwald, a teenager in Evanston, Ill., loves his dad, Charlie, and will probably love him as he continues to transition into a woman named Carly. But what Carly experiences as a profound journey can feel to Ben like a detour from his own crucial years of exploration. It's as if Boyhood somehow meandered into Amazon's Transparent. This reality series is touching, balanced and—in a world obsessed with Bruce Jenner—of the moment. (ABC Family, June 8, 9 p.m.)

Harington and Vikander fight for their love during WWI.

No. 7 Testament of Youth
MOVIE DRAMA

The first World War comes on like a mere irritation in this lush period piece, but it's raging soon enough. Based on the memoir by Vera Brittain (Alicia Vikander), Testament is a feminist film disguised as a swoony romance. Writer Vera falls for poet Roland (Kit Harington) just before the U.K. enters the conflict. She quits Oxford to become a nurse, tending to the wounded in grisly scenes. Vikander's Vera has steel in her spine; she's a fine match for Harington's dashing hero. Testament is about her fight—though all the world's at stake. (June 5, PG-13)

No. 8 Odd Mom Out
TV COMEDY

Author Jill Kargman is both creator and star of this good-natured satire of the Upper East Side's privileged, pushy "momzillas"—as Kargman dubbed them in her 2007 novel of that name. She plays an unpretentious, stay-at-home mom who's pitied because her husband is nothing more than a successful lawyer. Kargman's acting has a nice, unpolished naturalness—she could be a more urban Catherine Keener—but she's smart enough to leave the big jokes to Saturday Night Live alum Abby Elliott. She's Brooke, a satiny blonde whose pet project is preventive gastric bypass surgery for chubby children of obese parents. (Bravo, June 8, 10 p.m.)

Jenner (at the '76 Olympics) chose the name Caitlyn, which means "pure," because over the years it was a name she "always loved when she thought about this female part of her life," says a source close to Jenner.

BRUCE JENNER
IS NOW
CAITLYN JENNER

I Am Free

Loved ones share how the woman formerly known as Bruce Jenner shed her lifelong secret to blossom into a Vanity Fair cover star—and transgender pioneer

After Caitlyn Jenner made her glamorous worldwide debut on the cover of July's Vanity Fair, thousands of well-wishes poured in from around the globe—including some from stepdaughter Kim Kardashian West and her husband, Kanye West. In a flipping of the usual Keeping Up with the Kardashians script, Jenner's big reveal had promptly overshadowed Kim and Kanye's announcement that they're expecting a sibling for daughter North West. No matter. Although they have been "wrapped up in baby news," as a source close to the pair tells PEOPLE, they wanted to tell Jenner how much they loved her "beautiful" cover. "Look, none of this is a surprise to them at this point," says the source, noting that the family has been handling the emotional work related to Jenner's transgender journey for "a while now. They're long past the talk about being brave or courageous; that's already been discussed." Rather, this time, "it was like, 'What awesome photos!

During Vanity Fair's photo shoot, "there were as many laughs as tears," says a source. "She was confident, happy."

A Lifetime of Secrets

Growing up in New York, Caitlyn would dress up in her mother's clothes as a young child and was "very confused with my gender identity," she told Diane Sawyer in April.

Jenner (in '76) said sports built a masculine façade: "That's what everybody wants to believe."

"The formative years for [my children], I was really struggling with these issues," Caitlyn said of her relationship with her older kids (with Kris and their brood in '93).

'IT TAKES MUCH COURAGE TO DO WHAT SHE'S DOING. AND SHE'S HAPPY. THAT'S ALL THAT MATTERS'

—ESTHER JENNER, CAITLYN'S MOTHER

You looked terrific.' Kim, especially, was blown away by how good [she] looked in the magazine."

In her own words, the woman formerly known as Bruce Jenner has finally found the personal peace that had eluded her for 65 years—and it shows. "Bruce always had to tell a lie," Jenner told Vanity Fair's Buzz Bissinger in an emotional and candid interview. "He was always living that lie. Every day he always had a secret. From morning till night. Caitlyn doesn't have any secrets. . . . I'm free."

With her splashy introduction, Jenner—1976 Olympic gold medalist, father of 10 and longtime reality TV patriarch on the E! juggernaut Keeping Up with the Kardashians—became the highest-profile transgender person on the planet as well as a pioneer in a rapidly evolving national conversation (see box). The move drew widespread praise from friends, fans, the transgender community—and Jenner's 88-year-old mother. "I love her, and she's happy," Esther Jenner tells PEOPLE. "That's all that matters."

The cover reveal was the most dramatic step yet in a transition that has seen Jenner struggling to balance her private journey with the spotlight she has occupied since pole-vaulting to fame at the 1976 Montreal Olympics. "She finally is who she's always felt she should be her whole life," says a source close to the Jenner family. Although it has been a gradual change, "it takes time to get used to," says Esther. "I've called him Bruce since the day he was born. It's going to take me some time, but I will adjust." She's not alone: Jenner—who shared that she has so far undergone facial-feminization surgery and breast augmentation but not sex reassignment—admitted she occasionally still refers to herself as Bruce: "It's just a habit." The source close to Kim notes, "This is the new normal. They all still slip up and refer to Caitlyn as Bruce, or she as he, him, all that. It takes a lot of work to get it right. But the whole family is correcting each other when they get it wrong. Not in a joking way but just a reminder that 'hey, everything's changed.'"

That change was on full display during Jenner's shoot with famed celebrity photographer Annie Leibovitz. Fastened into a custom-made corset from L.A. boutique Trashy Lingerie with her hair cascading like a '40s-era screen star's, Jenner blossomed before the camera. "With each outfit she tried on, a new wave of emotion seemed to come over her," says a source. "She was just so days she is a warm and relaxed hostess who regularly throws “girls’ night” parties at her Malibu beach house. It was at one such party that Caitlyn introduced herself to her oldest daughter (with ex-wife Chrystie Crowover), Cassandra, 35, for the first time. “I feel so honored to be invited to such an intimate gathering,” Cassandra tells PEOPLE. Like other loved ones, Cassandra says the Vanity Fair photos reflect an increasingly confident woman. “I’m pleased with how beautiful and comfortable she seems when I see her,” she says of the parent she still calls Dad. “She seems to be having a lot of fun with it!”

For Caitlyn the public debut is a pivotal coming-out that represents not only social change but also the contentment she has happy and so at ease: There was no awkwardness, no slouching. Obviously, she’s very tall, but she kept her shoulders back and her head high. She cried multiple times and initially seemed to tear up practically every time someone used her name. It was just was so emotional for her to be having this moment where she could fully embrace every aspect of her femininity.”

It’s a radical new form of self-acceptance for Jenner, who previously described herself as a “loner” suffering from social anxiety. These sought for as long as she can remember—from her childhood in New York through three failed marriages, to Crowover, Linda Thompson and, finally, reality mogul Kris Jenner (see box). “This shoot was not about the fanfare... about people cheering in the stadium, it’s not about going down the street and everybody giving you, “That a boy, Bruce,”” Jenner, who says she is unsure of what sexual preferences lie ahead, told Vanity Fair. “This is about your life.”

But for all the joy surrounding her coming-out, there has been tremendous pain along the way. She admits to being absent for much of her

How Kris Sees Caitlyn

They were married for 23 years, but Kris Jenner says she never really knew the full scope of her husband’s secret. Speaking to Vanity Fair, she said that their relationship ended abruptly when Jenner “just decided, ‘I’m done.’” Knowing what she knows now, Kris told the magazine the way Caitlyn approached their 2013 separation and divorce felt like “the most passive-aggressive thing I think I’ve ever experienced.” She says she knew her husband had undergone hormone treatments “in the ’80s” and viewed the resulting breast growth as “a little bit of a man-boob situation. . . . Nobody mentioned a gender issue.” (She denied Caitlyn’s claim that Kris requested Bruce only cross-dress when out of town.) For her part, Caitlyn said she might have made a mistake “not having [Kris] understand . . . that this is a condition you cannot get away from.”

A Daughter Opens Up

The only daughter of Jenner and first wife Chrystie Crowover, Cassandra Marino—a mom herself to two kids with husband Michael—was born after her parents had already split. Jenner wasn’t present for her birth or for large swaths of her childhood. But in recent years they have drawn closer. “My relationship with Caitlyn is much better than with Bruce, but we still have a lot of work to do,” Cassandra tells PEOPLE. “We didn’t talk for years, and now we see each other every few weeks and talk on the phone, which I’m grateful for.” Since transitioning, “she’s happier and more appreciative of her family,” Cassandra says of Caitlyn. “She is trying harder, and there is a softness to Caitlyn that is new to me. I think part of that is that when someone is happier, they are just nicer.”

Close Ties
“We hang out like any family,” says Cassandra (with Jenner in March, and with daughter Francesca).

Talking About Trans Issues

Use their preferred name and pronoun, even when referencing events in that person's past.

For example: "Caitlyn Jenner won a gold medal at the Summer Olympics held in Montreal in 1976," a tip sheet released by GLAAD advised.

Use transgender as an adjective, never as a noun. For example, don't say: "Caitlyn Jenner is a transgender." And never use the terms transgendered, transsexual and transvestite.

For more information visit glaad.org.

older children's lives, trapped in the wrong body and emotionally isolated. "I have high hopes that Caitlyn is a better person than Bruce," her oldest son (with Crownover), Burt, 36, told Vanity Fair. Still, Burt and the rest of Jenner's vast brood have all expressed their support: sons Brandon, 34, and Brody, 31 (with Thompson); and his blended family with Kris, including daughters Kendall, 19, and Kylie, 17, and stepchildren Kim, 34, Kourtney, 36, Khloé, 30, and Rob, 28. "Be free now, pretty bird," Kendall tweeted on June 1.

Of course, things are not quite that simple. In her last interview as Bruce, with Diane Sawyer, taped in February and broadcast in April, she revealed she'd had suicidal thoughts last year, and she told Vanity Fair she'd suffered a panic attack after her 10-hour facial-feminization surgery in March. There are other, deeper hurts as well. "Just like the physical transition has taken months, it will take time for the emotional transition from Bruce to Caitlyn too," says a production source on KUWTK. "She has a therapist who has helped her with the emotional part. [Caitlyn] has expressed surprise about many feelings while going through the physical process. There were definitely moments of doubt and fear. This was supposed to be a lifelong dream come true, but things are more complex. Caitlyn will take things day by day. It was one thing to go out in public as Caitlyn when no one knew. It's much more intimidating to know that all eyes are on you now."

The eyes of the world may be watching, but now, at last, she is living her life with the kind of freedom she never thought possible. "The freedom to wear female clothes, to go for a coffee again and to not have to hide," says the production source. "Just simple things that most people never think twice about." Adds a source close to Caitlyn: "You can't even imagine the relief she feels. Like the weight of the world is off her shoulders. She feels so good right now."

Biden Family Tragedy

THE VICE PRESIDENT GRIEVES THE UNTHINKABLE LOSS OF HIS OLDEST CHILD, BEAU, A SON WHOSE BOND WITH HIM WAS FORGED IN LONG-AGO HEARTBREAK

When Beau Biden was just 3 and in a full body cast, his father, Joe, sat vigil at the boy's hospital bed for weeks, railing against a God his Catholic-school nuns had promised was merciful—but who had left Beau and brother Hunter, 2, battered in a Christmastime car crash that killed their mother and baby sister. Later, when Beau was grown, had joined the National Guard in the wake of 9/11 and then deployed to Iraq, his father kept vigil again. “Not seeing Beau, knowing he’s in harm’s way and he might not come back—it was just awful for Joe,” says former Sen. Ted Kaufman, a lifelong

1. Biden had just been elected to the U.S. Senate when his wife, Neilia (in '72 with, from left, Beau, Joe and Hunter), was killed.

2. Refusing to leave his sons after the crash, Biden took the Senate oath at Beau's hospital bedside in '73. 3. Beau tweeted this ca. late-'70s photo to his dad in November, writing, "Happy birthday to the best coach I could have asked for. Love you Pop. #TBT" 4. Beau, at his 2009 homecoming from Iraq, with Hunter, "was a leader in his own right," says Representative Carney.

friend who also served on Biden's Senate staff. "He has a rosary with him all the time and prays all those Hail Marys when he's going through these things, the bad times." But on May 30, as Joe Biden struggled through his worst time—one final twilight vigil with his oldest child—nothing could save the once-broken boy who'd grown to be a soldier, public servant and devoted dad himself. "Saddened beyond words" is how the Vice President put it in his announcement of Beau's death, from previously undisclosed brain cancer, at age 46.

While his widow, Hallie, and two children—Natalie, 11, and Hunter, 9—grieved with family (including Jill Biden, whom Joe married in 1977, and the daughter, Ashley, they had four years later) at the vice presidential residence at the Naval Observatory, Beau's death stunned Washington and the wider circle of Biden friends alike. Beau had, over the years, suffered a string of health problems, starting in his eight-year tenure as Delaware's attorney general: a mild stroke in 2010 and in August 2013 what was described as a "small lesion" removed from his brain. Only a tight knot of family and confidants knew the lesion was cancer and had come back this spring. "It was typical of Beau, if he wasn't feeling well, to not complain or say much," Margaret Aitken, who had known Beau since both were 14, tells PEOPLE. Plus, keeping "brain cancer" out of the news sheltered Natalie and Hunter. "They're young, but they read," Aitken says. Adds Delaware Congressman John Carney, another longtime friend: "I don't think anyone, in their greatest fears, thought this was even a possibility."

Beau himself betrayed no sign of surrender. He ended his run as attorney general in January, planned to run for governor in 2016 and joined a law practice that recently announced he was expanding his portfolio to champion whistle-blowers. "He had an exceptional sense of duty to his country and the public," says family friend Ron Klain, the Vice President's former chief of staff. But for Beau—as for the father he always kissed and hugged, according to lifetime friend Sonia Sloan—family came first. "Whether it was Hunter's T-ball or Natalie's cross-country meets," says Kaufman, "Beau was there."

'There's a big hole. This is one of those times you say, "Life is not fair"'

—FRIEND

As Beau's health faded, friends worried about his father facing another unthinkable loss. Kaufman rejoined the Vice President's staff and helped him through a long-planned speech at Yale's May 17 Class Day. There, behind dark glasses, Biden spoke of that life-shattering 1972 car crash and how "by focusing on my sons, I found my redemption." Now, with one of those sons gone, friends lean on Biden's own words, in 2012, to grieving military families: "There will come a day, I promise you . . . when the thought of your son or daughter or your husband or wife brings a smile to your lips before it brings a tear to your eye. It will happen."

"He believes that," Aitken says. "And I pray he's right."

Leading Lady, at Last

THE ACTRESS TALKS ABOUT BEING GWYNETH'S MOM, COPING WITH LOSS—AND LANDING THE ROLE OF A LIFETIME AT 72

BY K.C. BAKER

Blythe Danner wasn't exactly looking forward to the kissing scene on the first day of shooting her new film I'll See You in My Dreams. "I was nervous," she says. With good reason. She hadn't kissed another man since her husband, Bruce Paltrow, died in 2002—let alone one with a big, bushy mustache, like the one her costar Sam Elliott famously sports. "I met Sam, and I thought, 'Oh my gosh! This mustache!'" Then I thought, "What's it going to be like kissing this gorgeous, sexy man?" But he was so lovely and made it all so easy."

Kissing one of the manliest men in Hollywood isn't the only first in Danner's life these days. After 50 years of being best known for supporting roles—Will's mother on Will & Grace, Robert De Niro's wife in Meet the Parents, her real-life role as Gwyneth Paltrow's mom—she finally landed her first-ever leading movie role at age 72. "I've had a lot of leads in plays, but never in a movie," she says, laughing off awards buzz for her turn as a widow exploring romance again. "I'm a stage actress who just happened to get a lucky role in an indie. That's plenty for me." Danner is "not a diva," says director Brett Haley. "She's just a regular, cool broad." Danner says she has always been content to be a working actress and not a star. "I don't want to sound like a Pollyanna, but I didn't have that burning desire."

Though she has won a Tony Award and two Emmys, Danner had no early plans to become an actress. She grew up in the patrician Philadelphia Main Line suburbs, attended a Quakers school and graduated from Bard College. While her "first desire" was to become a jazz singer, she says, "I fell into acting" and began working in the theater. Rehearsing for a play, Danner met director-producer Bruce Paltrow, and married him in 1970. As Bruce's TV series such as St. Elsewhere took off and they raised kids Gwyneth, now 42, and Jake Paltrow, now 39 and a director, "Bruce would say to me, 'Look at our lives, honey. Aren't we fortunate?'" Danner recalls. "And he was so damn funny. He'd have you on the floor laughing."

But in 1998 Bruce was diagnosed with throat cancer just as he was about to begin directing his daughter in Duets.

She has no interest in dating again. "I just don't have any desire to," she says. She enjoys working and supporting the Oral Cancer Foundation's Bruce Paltrow Fund, which provides free screenings for the uninsured.

Pointing out that she is far from "a big social butterfly," she says she loves spending time with close friends, her kids and three grandchildren, who call her Lalo—the invention of Gwyneth's daughter Apple, 11. As a grandmother, she says, "I'm very goofy. I like to get down on all fours. I like to make up stuff and play hide-and-seek and scribble."

She praises Gwyneth and her ex, Coldplay's Chris Martin, for putting their kids first while "consciously uncoupling." Says Danner:

"They are so smart and good as parents. I'm really proud of them." She feels Gwyneth's detractors simply "can't understand how people could be so good at so many things. I'm glad she's strong. You have to be thick-skinned to be in our business."

And she's happy to take a page from her daughter, "who is frisky and likes to say what she wants to say." Being able to do that is "one of the great things about getting older," Danner says. "I feel much more confident at 72 than I did at any younger year. I feel more liberated. When you've been on this Earth this long, life just gives you permission." ●

THE NEW BACHELORETTE

SEX,

TRUE BLUE

"I'm sure of myself, and I know what I want," says Bristowe (last month in L.A.). "I have to not worry about what other people think."

LIES AND ...GAY

Publicly shamed for getting physical with a contestant, Kaitlyn Bristowe is opening up about the backlash—and dishing on her ‘crazy’ season so far

By AILI NAHAS

BACHELORS?!

Kaitlyn Bristowe expected to get a little heat for her no-holds-barred attitude on The Bachelorette. The 29-year-old former dance instructor had already garnered headlines on Chris Soules’s season of The Bachelor for her racy offer to let the Iowa farmer “plow [her] field.” And when her season kicked off, she proudly proclaimed she’d “kiss everyone” in her quest for a spouse. “I knew I was going to do things that would upset people,” she says. “I was prepared for that.”

But Bristowe wasn’t exactly prepared for the deeply personal attacks she would face. First, there was an onslaught of vitriol after a preview clip revealed that she had sex with one of the contestants. A flurry of negative attention and Internet “slut shaming” followed—as well as a series of scandalous tabloid headlines, including one claiming she had gotten pregnant during the show, something she vehemently denies. (Another source of gossip was the alleged coupling of two of her contestants; see box.) “I have tough skin, but when people are calling you a slut, that definitely hurts,” says Bristowe. “To have people attack me for being human is hard.”

Finding herself the poster girl for a national conversation about hookups has been nothing short of baffling. “Sex is part of a relationship to me,” Bristowe says. “I don’t know why it’s being made into such a horrible thing.” Getting busy on The Bachelor franchise has long been a sort of “don’t ask, don’t tell,” taboo, Brokeback Bachelors?

On the June 1 episode, potential suitor Arlis jokes about showering with fellow contestant Lane and even goes so far as to say that “falling in love with a man never crossed my mind [until then].” So is it true love or just a publicity ploy for ratings (with some calculated editing thrown in)? “I don’t think they are [gay],” says Bristowe. “I think it’s them having fun [on-camera]. They’re just bros.” Blame long hours (without phones, computers or even books!) in between dates and rose ceremonies. “There’s a lot of downtime,” Bristowe explains. “You can find comfort in one person. On The Bachelor, Becca Tilley and I did it too.”

with most Bachelors and Bachelorettes seemingly waiting for intimacy until the late-in-the-season “fantasy suite” dates. Kaitlyn is quick to point out the hypocrisy there. “If I’d waited 10 days, done it in the fantasy suite and not talked about it, then I’m not a whore,” she says. “I got a negative response because I talked about it.”

The self-assured Canadian does feel as though she “made a mistake” with the timing of the physical relationship but has no regrets. “It probably made the process of finding someone even more legit,” she says. “This is who I am, and if you’re going to love me for the rest of my life, then you have to love me for who I am.” And, despite the outcry, Bristowe, who works with RAW Beauty Talks to empower girls, says there have been some positive aspects to all the attention. “I’ve had girls come up to me and pat me on the back for being real,” she says. “I’m going to pay attention to that.” And a rocky start to her season hasn’t soured Bristowe’s Bachelorette journey. “This has been the craziest experience of my whole life,” says the star, who says she’s “happy” with the show’s still-secret outcome. “I just have to move forward and be thankful for what I went through.”

JUST MARRIED

ERIC PASLAY & NATALIE HARKER

HOW ROMANTIC! THE COUPLE SAY 'I DO' IN THE HILLS OF TENNESSEE
By DANIELLE ANDERSON

Seconds before her big walk down the aisle to wed singer Eric Paslay on April 26, Natalie Harker admits she had a bit of a “freak-out moment.” “I had no doubts about the groom—he’s the one thing I’m sure of,” says Harker. “But the thought of being in front of all those people was terrifying for me.”

Fortunately Paslay had it covered. Instead of waiting for his bride at the altar, the singer met her at the beginning of the aisle so they could take that walk side by side. “It was an amazing moment. I just went down, lifted her veil, and she was gorgeous,” says Paslay. “We got to take our last walk together as an engaged couple and our next walk as a married couple.”

The moment got even sweeter as the couple exchanged traditional vows during their outdoor ceremony at Front

“I couldn’t stop grinning,” said Paslay of seeing his bride in her Vera Wang gown. “She looked so beautiful.”

Porch Farms, a country estate just outside Nashville. “The day started off kind of overcast,” says Paslay, 32. “But as we were saying our vows, the sun came out and birds started singing. Really. It was amazing. Everyone just kept saying it was like a Disney movie.”

Afterward their 200 guests dined on steak and pasta before the fun really began. “We clipped through everything fast—from sitting down and eating, to toasts and cutting the cake, so we could have the rest of the night free and just dance,” says Harker, 32, who changed into a Johanna Johnson party dress for the reception. “We had a ball. We just let go and got lost in each other.”

Perhaps the most memorable part of the night came when Paslay got to initiate his Ohio-born bride to one of his beloved Texas traditions. “We do this giant dance to the ‘Cotton Eyed Joe,’ and we make lines and go around into a circle and yell out profanity while we’re kicking,” says Paslay. “It was a moment for all my Texas family, and I ran and got Natalie and said, ‘This is a family tradition, and you’re a part of all this now!’”

THE DETAILS

The reception featured a four-tier vanilla-bean cake. Bridesmaids wore gowns from White House Black Market. “Black goes with everything,” says Harker.

Photobombed by a pig? “He lives at the venue,” says Harker. “But I was happy to have him run around the wedding.”

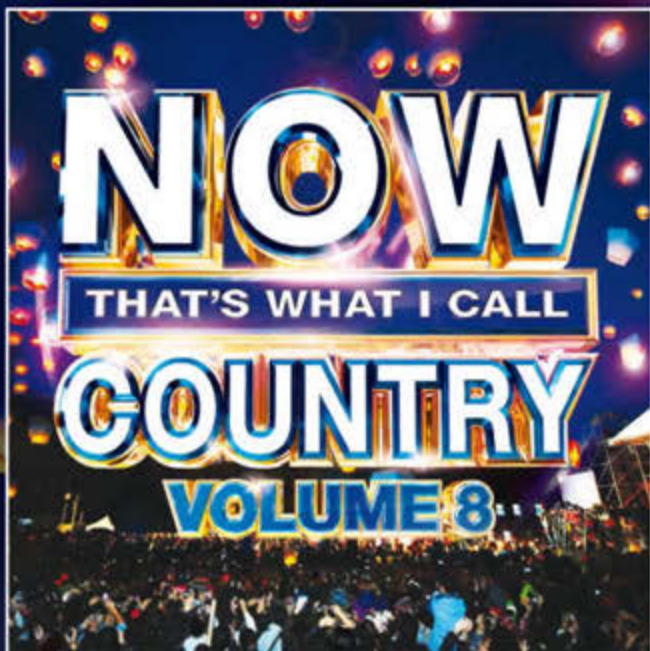

THE GRAND EXIT

"It was a magical moment," Paslay says of the bride and groom closing out the party with a sparkling salute from their guests. "Natalie planned the whole wedding, and it's amazing how it all looked. It was truly awesome."

THE DREAM

"I'm holding a brain. I've been interested in neuroscience for 20 years, and I have friends who are Nobel Prize winners who are in the dream. It's all these people with big brains, and I'm standing there holding a brain, and it talks to me about their research. They're teaching me, and it's the brain that has the collective wisdom and tells me stuff."

THE ANALYSIS

"This is what I call a big dream, having to do with more mythic levels of life," says dream coach Paula Scardamalia of diviningthemuse.com. "If Naomi's dream were my dream, I would understand that when I have the dream, I am receiving higher-level guidance about my life. COUNTRY'S HOTTEST GUY

2015

By DANIELLE ANDERSON Photographs by JOE PUGLIESE

It's a scene straight out of a James Bond movie: There's the superstar, muscular and smoldering, standing on the tarmac under the hot afternoon sun. Behind him, the sleek Cirrus SR22T Xi he'll use to fly himself to a private gig later in the evening, and at his side, his loyal canine companion, code name Jake. But this is no spy film: It's just another day in the life of Dierks Bentley.

In fact, neither the Nashville photo shoot celebrating Bentley's status as PEOPLE Country's Hottest Guy 2015 nor his scheduled flight is the most thrilling part of the singer's day. That honor goes to this morning's activity: snuggling up on the couch with his kids—Evie, 6, Jordan, 4, and Knox, 19 months—and watching Star Wars together for the very first time. “I kept thinking, ‘Wow, is this really happening?’” Bentley says excitedly. “Talk about a major moment!”

It's also a glimpse into Bentley's high-speed, multitasking world. “It's the way

I live my life right now—even the clothes I wear can go from home to photo shoot to stage,” says Bentley, 39, who got his pilot’s license so he could get to and from gigs faster, allowing him more time at home with wife Cassidy, 39, and the kids. “One second I’m making pancakes and dropping the kids off at school, the next I’m getting in the plane and flying myself to a show and back before anyone even knows I’ve left.”

But as “international man of mystery” as his life might seem, Bentley, who will kick off his Sounds of Summer tour June 5, isn’t one for the trappings of fame. After all, would James Bond show up at his photo shoot in a 1994 pickup? Or turn down Cirrus’s offer to upgrade his plane? “I like this one,” he says. “It’s really hard for me to let go of things that have meaning for me.” We sat down with the singer to chat about all things Dierks.

When do you feel your best?

Right now Cassie and I know these are probably the best years of our lives—on so many levels. The kids still run around the house naked, the place is a complete mess, and it’s just madness, but I can look

What do you think is the perfect date?

A Sunday morning spent reading the paper together, maybe drinking some mimosas, alone and talking until noon. That would be pretty amazing. Married couples with kids will understand.

Why do you love flying?

I’m more introverted than people think. Up in the sky, it’s just so quiet. There’s nothing alive around you, and it’s so peaceful. It’s a form of therapy for me. Being forced to be alone with your thoughts can be uncomfortable, but it’s also helpful, especially for songwriting.

Any scary moments in the air?

There was one time we were coming back from Arkansas, and we crossed a cold front at night, and lightning was flashing like paparazzi flashbulbs in the cockpit. We got jerked around quite a bit—it was pretty crazy.

Since you’re a pilot and have your own plane, are you a member of the Mile-High Club?

Yes. And that’s all I’m going to say.

How have you changed with age?

Kids are the biggest patience tester. My skills now as a human being, as a man,

"If I had a time machine, I'd go back and hang out with my dad at the exact same age as me," says Bentley, who still drives the 1994 pickup truck passed down to him by his father. "We'd go to a bar."

I LIKE THINGS THAT HAVE A HISTORY AND A STORY TO THEM

between now and even six years ago . . . I'm a completely different person. I remember when my wife first moved in with me, I used to keep the dog's bowls in a certain spot. I came back from being on the road, and the dog bowls were in a different spot, and it really bothered me. I look back on that and realize I've grown a lot.

Your dog Jake has been with you a long time. Is he still your wingman at age 14?

Oh yeah. Jake's been with me since the very beginning—before kids, before I married my wife, had a record deal, everything! He's evolved with me the whole way. He went from not liking kids at all to being so protective of my kids and sleeping in their rooms. All the changes I've had to go through, being a boy to becoming a man, he's done the same thing with me.

What superpower do you wish you had?

To be able to temporarily clone my wife and me so we could be with our kids, but then also get more alone time.

What do you wear to bed?

Honestly, I sleep best wearing nothing. But with kids,

I've learned to sleep with underwear very close by, if not wrapped around one of my feet, so I'm ready to go if something happens. I remember somewhere in his 70s, my dad started wearing a nightgown—like an old-school grandpa gown! I can see how that might be somewhere in my future.

When I look in the mirror, I see . . .

A man. I see some of my dad in me. I still see some of the kid in me. But I don't spend so much time in the mirror—that's one of the good things about not shaving.

Your career has had a slow and steady rise as opposed to meteoric . . .

The rise of my career looks like a driveway that you can't even see has a slight incline to it. That's how my career has felt over the past 12 years. If you would have told me when I first started out that 2014 and 2015 would be my biggest years yet, I'd be like, "Yeah, I'll be retired by then!" But I'm so thankful I'm having the success I'm having now. And that I have my wife and family to share it with. And luckily, my driveway has a little more slope to it now.

AGE: 48 WHY WE LOVE HIM: HE'S A FLIRT!

He may be going on 19 years of marriage, but the singer just can't resist a little dirty flirting—all with wife Faith Hill, of course. While performing their Vegas show in 2012, he told the crowd that Hill's little black dress was "gonna look good on the floor later," and last year at CMA Fest, the singer grabbed his wife's butt as he dipped her for a kiss onstage. On a recent red carpet, he cheekily told a reporter that the best part of his wife's outfit was getting to unzip it at the end of the night. Yup, he's a bad boy . . . and a real good man!

BLAKE SHELTON

AGE: 38 WHY WE LOVE HIM:
HE'S A DOWN-HOME DUDE

To be sure, Shelton can be wowed by his wife's glamorous side—"Have y'all ever seen anyone hotter?" he tweeted alongside a red carpet photo of Miranda Lambert. But what he really appreciates is the girl next door beneath the glitz. "He's one of those dudes who says, 'You look prettier without [makeup];'" Lambert told PEOPLE. "He sees me the same, whether I have a whole glam squad or I'm just hanging out at home." This is, after all, a guy who popped the question when his future wife was makeup-free and wearing camo—and whose idea of a hot date is hanging out in a deer stand with matching shotguns.

Luke Bryan

AGE: 38 WHY WE LOVE HIM:
HE'S GOT A SENSITIVE SOUL

Here's a partial list of things that make Luke Bryan cry: commercials with returning soldiers, the movies Rudy and Marley & Me, watching his boys say their prayers, his first ACM Entertainer of the Year win, recording his heart-wrenching tune "Drink a Beer." And you won't see the singer hiding any of those tears. "I think that's what life's about—embracing those moments," he says. Fans, in turn, have embraced Bryan for both his fun-loving spirit and that generous heart, evident most recently when he took in his teenage nephew after the boy lost both his parents. "We're blessed to be in a situation where we can pull our family together," he says. "I want to be a positive light for my family and for people that may be dealing with similar things."

EASTON CORBIN

AGE: 33 WHY WE LOVE HIM:
YOU CAN TAKE HIM HOME TO MOM

Easton Corbin's perfect Sunday starts in church and ends on a Harley. If there's some hunting in between, all the better. But one thing it probably won't include is a home-cooked meal. "There ain't much of anything in my refrigerator ever," he says.

"If it's in my refrigerator, it's probably past the expiration date!" What never gets old are his good southern manners. "My grandmother taught me to always be honest and do the right thing."

JASON ALDEAN

AGE: 38 WHY WE LOVE HIM:
HE'S GOT A CERTAIN SWAGGER

For Aldean, it's not just what you have, but how you use it. "Confidence is a big key—and there's a fine line between cockiness and having confidence," he says. "Especially in this business when you're around stars all the time, it's easy to get intimidated, but you need to be comfortable with who you are. If some guy goes up and talks to a girl and acts like he's scared to death, she's going to think there's something wrong with him. Having confidence in whatever you do, that's something women like."

KEITH URBAN

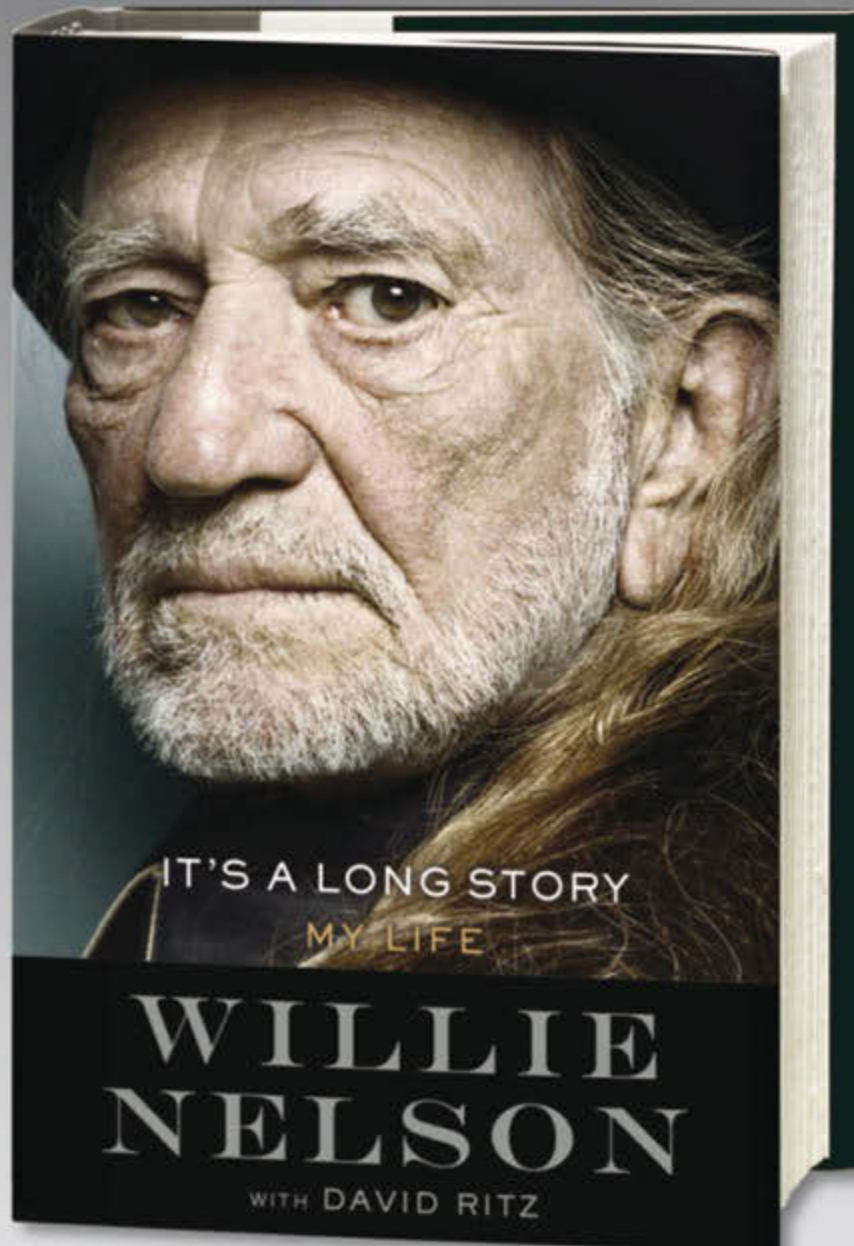

AGE: 47 WHY WE LOVE HIM: HE WEARS HIS HEART ON HIS SLEEVE

American Idol viewers who fell in love with Urban—and his chair dancing—discovered what country fans have long known: This is a guy in touch with his emotions, and he doesn't care who knows it. That's true whether he's grooving to a beat he can't resist or singing the praises of his famous wife, Nicole Kidman, in songs like "Once in a Lifetime," which he serenaded her with from stage on their eighth anniversary last year. "My wife has opened up my eyes and heart to the courage to love," he says. "Love is my muse, and Nic is just a well of inspiration for me."

BRETT ELDREDGE

AGE: 29 WHY WE LOVE HIM:
HE'S GAME FOR ANYTHING

If you want to date Brett Eldredge, expect the unexpected.

The singer's been known to skydive and swim with sharks on a dare, and he once threw an impromptu barhopping karaoke party for his fans. "I like to experience as much in life as possible," the Paris, Ill., native says. Any girl hoping to win his heart must have a similar spirit. "I need somebody spontaneous," the singer says. "I like to go by the seat of my pants and wing it. If I have a couple of days off, let's go to Florida. I'm not a plan-maker, so it has to be someone who doesn't take herself too seriously.

I'd love a girl who doesn't take three hours to get ready but who is up for anything."

Jake Owen

AGE: 33 WHY WE LOVE HIM:
HE'S A TRUE ROMANTIC

Owen's a guy who sweats the details—at least when it comes to showing his love for his wife of three years, Lacey. Take their beachside wedding. The timing was carefully planned: “We thought it would be beautiful to get out there as the sun starts popping up over the ocean.

That was my idea. It's symbolic of starting our new life.” He also had a singular vision for Lacey's ring: “I was looking for a ring that would reflect Lacey. She has a timeless beauty.” The winner? A diamond “like you'd see on a princess's hand.”

DUSTIN LYNCH

AGE: 30 WHY WE LOVE HIM:
HE KNOWS HIS OWN STRENGTHS

In high school Lynch was hardly a big man on campus. “When I was younger, I was mad ‘cause I couldn’t play football or basketball because I was so short,” he says. “I was 130 lbs. soaking wet, and I’m only 5’9”. I was just one of the dweebs in the stands! Then it hit me to pick the guitar up. When my buddies and me formed a band, after our second show, we were all dating girls a year ahead of us in school, which is unheard of! Now I wouldn’t trade the guitar for an inch.”

CHRIS YOUNG

AGE: 30 WHY WE LOVE HIM:
HE’S GOT A NERDY SIDE!

There’s something adorable about a guy who can croon a sexy love song onstage and geek out afterward. “I am a total nerd. That’s never going to change,” Young says. “I still read comic books, and I’m a gamer. I’m very much a Gemini—I’ve got two sides. If and when I settle down with someone, they’ll have to be okay with that.”

WHY WE LOVE THEM:
THEY KNOW HOW TO TREAT A LADY

They may be country music’s party boys, but there’s one thing both Brian Kelley (left) and Tyler Hubbard take seriously. “Both our dads taught us how to love a lady and treat a woman. That’s one thing we don’t take for granted for sure,” Hubbard says. “When you got a good one, you’ve got to treat her right.” And maybe spoil her a little too, like the way Hubbard proposed to his bride-to-be during a surprise helicopter ride. Or with the fresh flowers that Kelley makes sure to keep at home for his wife. “I try to do little things to make her feel special,” he says.

"Trouble"

Rachel Reinert cowrote the first single off the trio's new album after dumping a two-timing ex. "Guys think they can get away with it, but we always figure it out," she says. "It's like, 'If you mess with me, you're asking for trouble.' There's nothing nice about this song."

Stephen Barker Liles and Eric Gunderson get serious—and deeply personal—in a song based on Liles's own alcoholic grandfather. "It's about a guy who's lost everything because of addiction," says Liles. "We want people to know it's never too late to turn your life around."

Kristian Bush

After more than a decade as the male half of the platinum-selling country duo Sugarland, Kristian Bush admits he's happy to finally be writing music from a guy's point of view. "The only love songs that I've written in the last 10 years have been through the voice of a woman," says Bush of his years with bandmate Jennifer Nettles. "And I've learned a great deal during that process, how different men and women feel love." His new single, from his debut solo album, Southern Gravity, "is about what it's like, as a man, to be loved by a woman," he says. "You can't unlearn it. You can't go back and forget it. This love changes us forever, and I wanted the song to celebrate what that feels like."

Webb calls his latest single "a redemption song." "Most love songs are either about losing love or finding love," says the Greenville, S.C., native. "This one is special because it's deeper. Real love is work. You don't fall in love—you have to climb the stairs."

REBA McENTIRE I'M THANKFUL FOR...

MY JOB

I've traveled all over the world and done things I never dreamed I would do—movies, sitcoms, Broadway. I'm grateful for every opportunity that has come my way with this career.

MY FAMILY

I have a huge family. There are close to 50 when I put my bunch with my brother's, my sister's and Mama's bunch. And it's hard to believe, but Narvel and I have six grandkids now!

AMERICAN IDOL

[Daughter-in-law Kelly Clarkson] was the first winner in 2002, and we met at an Idol special. It's just such a crazy, unpredictable turn of life that we became friends, Narvel became her manager, she and Brandon fell in love, got married and had our grandbaby! All in just over 10 years. It's crazy to think about!

OPTIMISM

I try to wake up and face every day with a positive attitude and to be surrounded by people who do the same. I don't have room for negativity. Being positive and having a good attitude is a choice I make.

MY HEALTH

I eat right and I prioritize working out because it makes me feel better. And when I feel terrible, everybody pays for it!

On May 18, 1980, Mount St. Helens erupted, sending a column of ash and smoke 80,000 feet into the atmosphere. From that chaos, something beautiful emerged—our spectacular Spirit Lake Helenite Ring.

Created from the superheated volcanic rock dust of the historic Mount St. Helens eruption, helenite has become the green stone of choice for jewelry and fashion designers worldwide. Helenite's vivid color and immaculate clarity rivals mined emeralds that can sell for as much as $3,000 per carat. Today you can wear this 4-carat stunner for only $99!

Our exclusive design highlights the visually stunning stone with a concave cut set in .925 sterling silver loaded with brilliant white, lab-created DiamondAura®.

Beauty from the beast. Also known as "America's Emerald," helenite is not an emerald at all, but a brighter and clearer green stone that gem cutters can facet into spectacular large carat weight jewelry. "It's just recently that luxury jewelers have fallen in love with helenite," says James Fent, GIA certified gemologist. "Clear green color in a stone this size is rarely found in emeralds but helenite has come to the rescue."

Your satisfaction is 100% guaranteed. Bring home the Spirit Lake Helenite Ring and see for yourself. If you are not completely blown away by the exceptional beauty of this rare American stone, simply return the ring within 60 days for a full refund of your purchase price. It's that simple. Filming their hit show The Little Couple (which airs Tuesdays at 9 p.m. on TLC) hasn't put a strain on family time, says Arnold. "We're happy to share our story."

It's barely 9 a.m. at Bill Klein and Dr. Jennifer Arnold's bustling Houston home. But, thanks to 5-year-old son Will, the whole family has been up and running since dawn. "Before the alarm goes off you just hear his stomping upstairs. And it's not pitter-patter, it's the abominable snowman coming down the hallway," Klein says, dodging daughter Zoey, 3, as she zooms past him on her scooter, making her third trip around the kitchen table while Will begins to swing his dad's shoehorn around like a sword. His wife chimes in from across the room. "Life is just busy," she says. "I never imagined it could be as busy as it is."

These days the stars of TLC's hit series The Little Couple, which returned May 26—the same day as the release of their new book Life Is Short (No Pun Intended)—couldn't be happier trying to juggle a show and their home life, especially since not long ago they nearly lost it all.

In 2013 the couple (who both have forms of skeletal dysplasia) traveled to China to adopt their son Will, who also has skeletal dysplasia. Later that year they were preparing to bring home daughter Zoey, who has the same condition, from an orphanage in India when Arnold received the devastating news that she had stage 3 choriocarcinoma, a rare cancer found mostly in women who have been pregnant (Arnold had suffered a failed pregnancy prior to her diagnosis). "You are petrified," she recalls. "I look back now, and it's almost like a blur." She underwent a hysterectomy and six rounds of intense chemotherapy.

As Arnold was in the fight of her life, she and Klein also faced the struggle of acclimating newly adopted daughter Zoey, then 2, to the family—a task that proved especially daunting since the toddler had spent the beginning of her life in an under-resourced orphanage without any exposure to men or people of Klein and Arnold's stature. "She blamed us for the change," recalls Arnold. "She really wanted nothing to do with us. I remember my oncologist coming to visit me, and Zoey just latched on to her leg as she left. She would rather go home with a stranger than be with us.”

But since Arnold’s ongoing cancer treatments meant staying home for four months, the family was able to focus on connecting with the child, who’s since made a remarkable change. “There were rough nights,” Arnold admits of parenting through chemo. “But I would still play ring-around-the-rosy with the kids. That was our time together after dinner and bedtime stories.” Gradually, Zoey began to warm to her new home. Arnold sees the extended bonding period as the “silver lining” to having cancer: “To be honest, I had a lot more time with my kids.”

An attending neonatologist at Texas Children’s Hospital used to long hours and high stress levels, Arnold says that after nearly losing her life, “you can’t just go back to the way things were.” So in early May she made the decision to take a “big step down” at the hospital and is no longer seeing patients—a major change for the physician, who’s also the medical director of the Pediatric Simulation Center. “I’m still very driven with my work, but it’s not the same as it was before,” she says. “I want to have enough energy to enjoy being a mom and actually be there for my kids.”

While Arnold says Zoey has the “typical tantrums and meltdowns,” the family of four is finally settling into everyday life, which includes feeding the pet fish, going to karate class and taking ballet lessons. “I’m the ‘nervous Nellie’ mom,” Arnold admits. “Dating, driving a car, all those things. I don’t even want to think about it.” But the couple know there will be other challenges ahead. “We could be delusional and think we’ve broken down every barrier related to skeletal dysplasia, dwarfism, short stature people, but that’s not the case,” says Klein. “There’s still plenty of people who will make fun, and stuff is going to happen. I hope my kids will realize that those people don’t matter. There are a lot of important things in life. When you get close to losing them, it changes the way you view the world.” ●

MOM—THE BELOVED
SITCOM STAR
IS JUST HITTING HER STRIDE

By RENNIE DYBALL

If there is a downside to being married to John Stamos on a classic '90s TV show, Lori Loughlin has discovered it. "I don't post many pictures of my own husband on Instagram because every time I do, I get a bunch of comments saying, 'You should have married John Stamos,'" Loughlin says of her costar on the family sitcom Full House. For what it's worth, her actual husband of 16 years, fashion mogul Mossimo Giannulli, isn't making a fuss. Says Loughlin: "He commented on my Instagram, 'I agree—she should have!'"

Lucky for her old series' obsessive fans, the characters of Aunt Becky and Uncle Jesse will be together again for a reunion episode on a much buzzed-about spinoff, Fuller House, out next year on Netflix. "It's caught me off guard lately," the actress, 50, says of being part of a cult show. "John and I had so much fun together, but even I am, like, why are people so obsessed with these two? Maybe we represented some kind of idyllic couple. It's flattering."

Loughlin's real life is pretty picturesque, too. Sitting in the yard behind her Mediterranean-style Beverly Hills home, the actress says she feels "very blessed. I have a husband who loves me, and I love him, and we have healthy children—that's the most important to me." Loughlin, a New York native who got her start on the soap The Edge of Night, has been a busy working actress since her teens—most recently starring in Hallmark Channel's historical series When Calls the Heart (the season finale airs June 13). "They try each season to put me in a corset. I only make it to lunchtime before I have to take it off," she says. "It's authentic to the period, but I can't even breathe!"

That's not the only area where the actress is calling the shots. As mom to daughters Olivia, 15, and Isabella, 16—and proud stepmom to Gianni, 23—Loughlin says she tailors her work schedule to maximize time at home: "Once I decided to have a family, I said that would be my priority. Life goes by so fast." Loughlin's four-year run on the revamped 90210 was ideal because it taped nearby during school hours. "I don't think my kids realized I had a job,"

'After dinner, the whole family has been known to crank up the music and just dance'
—LOUGHLIN

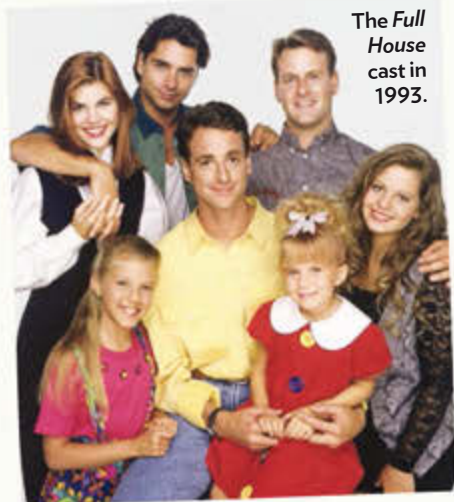

"I wish I could be as beautiful as they are," Loughlin says of her daughters Isabella (left) and Olivia. The press-shy "Moss" (inset) opted not to be photographed, but "when you get to know him," says his wife, "he's the life of the party."

she says, adding, "I'm very conscious of the fact that people have to work far from home, but I'm fortunate to be in a position where I can be choosy."

She's also well aware that she has genetics to thank for looking this good at 50. "My mom is going to be 80 and you'd never know," says Loughlin, who swears by regular facials and yoga. Still, no one is safe from the stress of a milestone birthday. "The lead-up was the worst, going, 'Oh my God, I'm gonna be 50,'" she says. "It's hard to get older as an actress. You see a lot of people, especially in L.A., chasing youth. My husband always says, 'Just age gracefully,' but sometimes I stand over the mirror and go, well, if I just got a little tuck right there, it would be so much better. But you can't turn around and look 20 again. My mother always said when you have your health, you have your wealth. And it's true."

Loughlin channels her own mother often when parenting Olivia, a popular YouTube personality (one video features Olivia's friend Natasha Bure, fellow Full House alum Candace Cameron Bure's daughter), and Isabella, who's into photography and fashion. And while Loughlin and her girls are regular features on each other's social media, the actress makes her role quite clear. "I'd like to think I'm somewhat their friend, but more importantly, I am their mother and a guiding force. I am strict with my girls; I talk a lot at them. My mother filled my head with her moral beliefs, teaching right from wrong. I do the same." And it appears she does it well. "She gives the greatest advice, and she's supportive no matter what," says Olivia of her mom. "We're both very close with her," adds Isabella, summing it up with a cheerful teenage shrug: "She's the best."

They're not the only ones who think so. In a 2013 interview, Stamos said his former TV wife might be the one that got away. So what does Loughlin think of that? Says the actress with a hearty laugh: "If I could fit it on a vanity plate on my car, I would!" ●

If You Worked Around Gaskets or Packing Containing Asbestos

The Garlock Bankruptcy May Affect Your Rights.

Certain Personal Injury Claims Must be Filed by October 6, 2015

There is a bankruptcy involving claims about exposure to asbestos-containing gasket and packing products. Garlock Sealing Technologies LLC, The Anchor Packing Company, and Garrison Litigation Management Group, Ltd. ("Debtors") have filed a plan of reorganization to restructure their business and pay claims.

The products (with names like Garlock, Blue-Gard, Gylon, and Flexseal) were used in places where steam, hot liquid or acids moved through pipes, including industrial and maritime settings.

Who is Affected by the Garlock Bankruptcy?

Your rights may be affected if you:

- Worked with or around Garlock asbestos-containing gaskets or packing, or any other asbestos-containing product for which Debtors are responsible, or
- Have a claim now or in the future against the Debtors for asbestos-related disease caused by any person's exposure to asbestos-containing products.

Even if you have not yet been diagnosed with any disease or experienced any symptoms, your rights may be affected. The Court has appointed a Future Claimants' Representative ("FCR") to represent the rights of these future claimants. Future claimants do not need to file a claim at this time.

What Does the Plan Provide?

The Plan is the result of a settlement agreement between the FCR, the Debtors, and the Debtors' parent company. The Plan proposes to use $357.5 million to pay, in full, all pending and future asbestos claims against Garlock and Garrison. If necessary, up to $132 million in additional funding will be provided. If the Plan is approved, you will no longer be able to file claims directly against the Debtors or affiliated companies. If you have claims only against Anchor, you are not expected to recover anything, as that company has no assets and will be dissolved.

Who Must File a Personal Injury Claim?

You must file a claim by October 6, 2015, if you:

- Have a claim against Garlock or Garrison based on an asbestos-related injury diagnosed on or before August 1, 2014,
- Have not settled with the Debtors, and
- Filed a lawsuit against any other defendant or a claim against any asbestos trust as of August 1, 2014.

If you do not file a claim, you may lose your right to bring your claim in the future. Individuals diagnosed with disease after August 1, 2014 do not have to file a claim at this time, but may be able to vote or object to the Plan.

Who Can Vote on or Object to the Plan?

All identifiable asbestos claimants or their attorneys will receive the "Solicitation Package". This includes the Plan, Voting Ballot, and other information. If you have not filed a claim yet, you can vote on the Plan by providing certified information about your claim, or making a motion to vote as described in the Solicitation Package available online or by calling the toll-free number.

You will need to vote on the Plan by October 6, 2015. The FCR will support and vote to accept the Plan on behalf of the future claimants. You may also object to the Plan and the adequacy of the FCR's representation of future claimants by October 6, 2015.

When will the Court Decide on the Plan?

A hearing to consider confirmation of the Plan will begin at 10:00 a.m. ET on June 20, 2016, at the US Bankruptcy Court, Western District of North Carolina, 401 West Trade Street, Charlotte, NC 28202.

SMART, SEXY AND UNAFRAID
TO BE SILLY, THE SPY STAR HITS
HER STRIDE By AILI NAHAS

Rose Byrne is sitting down with a PEOPLE writer to talk about her new movie Spy, but not before taking a photo for her Instagram account of the bunny an artistic barista has crafted in her cappuccino foam. “Sorry!” she says with a laugh. “I have to post this.” She’s having a major Hollywood moment, but the 35-year-old Aussie is determined to keep her life low-key. “Rose is not intimidating,” says Spy director Paul Feig, who gave Byrne her big comedy break in Bridesmaids. “She could be your best friend.”

That is, if your best friend is a gorgeous, critically acclaimed actress whose pals include Glenn

“I don’t think you ever feel you’ve ‘arrived’ in this business,”
says Byrne.
“The nature of an artist is restless.”

Byrne plays a femme fatale in Spy, which also stars her boyfriend, Bobby Cannavale (with her at left). "They're both the nicest people in the world, and so in love," says director Paul Feig.

Close and Melissa McCarthy. Until recently, Byrne has had a thriving career minus the nonstop attention that comes with megastardom. But Spy—she plays an arms dealer who battles McCarthy's CIA agent—may change that. "It's so exciting," she says of fame. Still, she's torn about becoming a household name: "I'm always reinventing myself through my roles."

Growing up in the Sydney suburb of Balmain, the daughter of Jane, a school administrator, and Robin Byrne, a market researcher, started acting at 8. After working steadily at home and abroad, she won raves in 2007 as attorney Ellen Parsons opposite Close in FX's thriller Damages, but "people had a certain perception of me" because of the dark role, she says. "It was tricky to get into the room for [something else]."

Byrne changed it up by auditioning for funny parts. "It's weirdly harder for me to do comedy," she says. "It's the bastard child of the serious film business." But in 2011 Feig cast her as the straight woman in his raunchy all-female blockbuster. "I was naive," she says of Bridesmaids. "I never thought we were breaking new ground—I bet the guys from The Hangover didn't get 'Wow, you're so funny!'" Since then she's worked nonstop but avoided the fast lane, living in New York City with her partner of three years, actor Bobby Cannavale, 45, who costarred with her in Spy, Annie and Adult Beginners. “Making a film is an intense experience,” she says. “To experience it with your boyfriend is quite fun.” When they aren’t working, the pair enjoy a night in. “He’s Cuban, and he does really good Cuban dishes,” says

‘You need to have a thick skin in this business. But you have to be vulnerable too’

Byrne. “Arroz con pollo, Cuban cocktails. He’s better than I am. I’m the good cleaner-after!” Byrne keeps fit by swimming at her local Y. “I love it,” she says. “Being Australian, we have so many outdoor pools, so for me it’s the best exercise. Even though it’s not trendy!” But then, being trendy has never been high on her list. “Just to go from Balmain to my flat in New York City is still a thrill,” she says. “I’m just trying to embrace the feeling of not knowing what’s happening next.”

ROSE'S ROAD TO STARDOM

1. Byrne romanced newcomer Heath Ledger in the 1999 Australian film Two Hands.
2. As Achilles, Brad Pitt took Byrne for a war prize in the '04 hit Troy.
3. “Glennie is a dear friend,” she says of her Damages adversary. “I admire her.”
4. Her role in Bridesmaids ('11) cemented Byrne's status as a sharply funny actress.

My Life Now

Jessica Lynch

AFTER BEING RESCUED IN IRAQ 12 YEARS AGO, THE FORMER POW IS EMBRACING LIFE AS A MOM AND AN EDUCATOR

'I don't feel sorry for myself, and I don't want other people to either'

—JESSICA LYNCH, WITH DAUGHTER DAKOTA

HAIR & MAKEUP: DEBI MAKEZENOBIA; INSET: U.S. CENTRAL COMMAND/ZUMA

SHE MAY LIVE IN WEST VIRGINIA, but Iraq is never far from Jessica Lynch's mind. "I check that my door is locked 200 times a night," the 32-year-old tells PEOPLE. "It's part of my PTSD—the fear that I'll be attacked again." Lynch—a private first class who was injured and captured in 2003, when her Humvee was ambushed in Iraq, killing the four other U.S. soldiers in her vehicle—readily admits that her bravery in battle was exaggerated. ("I think they were just looking for a hero," she says.) But there's no overstating the toll those nine days in captivity still take on her life. "Every day I think, 'Why was I the only survivor?'" says Lynch, who wears a brace because of nerve damage in her left leg. "I don't think I'll ever get over it." But there's plenty of joy too on the 80-acre property she shares with her fiancé, Wes Robinson, 34, and their daughter Dakota, 8. "I'm so fortunate. I got to come home." Lynch has earned bachelor's and master's degrees and is now a substitute teacher; she's also an actress in faith-based films (her first, Virtuous, was released this month) and travels doing speaking engagements on the power of perseverance. "That's how I look at life," says Lynch. "No matter what obstacle comes my way, I'm going to do what I set out to do." —Alexandra Rockey Fleming in Elizabeth, W.Va.

THE DRAMATIC RESCUE

"I had a broken back, so I couldn't move," Lynch says of being carried from an Iraqi hospital. "It was a scary moment."

The Truth About My Weight Loss

THE REALITY STAR SHARES HOW SHE DROPPED FOUR SIZES WITH 'NO DIET, NO EXERCISE'

When Abby Lee Miller debuted a notably slimmer frame in April, rumors swirled that she had undergone a lap-band procedure to lose the weight. Not true, says the sharp-tongued Dance Moms star, who at her heaviest wore a size 24. And she didn't go the traditional route either: "There's no diet, there's no exercise."

Instead, the take-no-prisoners dance-team coach says the dramatic change began when she was diagnosed with diabetes—around the same time that her mother was battling colon cancer, a fight she eventually lost in February of last year. "That hospital food just makes you sick," says the reality TV star, 49. Visitors would constantly bring comfort food to her mother's hospice room, but nothing appealed to Miller. "Normally I would have taken that Danish and wolfed it down in three bites," she says, "but because of the smells of the hospice, it just was not appetizing."

her L.A. studio.

Shortly after her mother's death at age 86, Miller was back on the set of Dance Moms, terrorizing her tiny charges in a studio in Burbank that she describes as "hot as hell," so overindulging was off: "Nobody was eating a lot."

Finally, while shooting the hit Lifetime series in Australia last summer, Miller had an adverse reaction to a diabetes medication. "I was vomiting like I was in fourth grade and had the flu," she says. "It was awful. After I would throw up, I couldn't even look at food for the rest of the day. So that is how I lost the weight!"

'I would love to say I feel a lot better and everything is magic, but it's hard'

Now a size 16, she is enjoying new wardrobe options, including "pants with zippers—I used to stay away from that," but says she has found herself falling back into bad habits such as fast-food runs. "I am noticing that I'm starting to gain weight back, and that scares the crap out of me," she says. "I need to start working out. I'm not slim by any means—I have a long, long way to go."

- 3 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 tbsp. baking powder
- 2 tsp. baking soda
- 2 tsp. kosher salt
- 4 tsp. granulated sugar
- 1 stick cold unsalted butter, cut into small pieces
- 1 cup (6 oz.) crumbled crispy bacon
- ½ cup crumbled dry blue cheese or Gorgonzola
- ¼ cup finely chopped parsley
- 1½ cups buttermilk

1. Preheat the oven to 400°. Line a rimmed baking sheet with parchment paper. In a large bowl, combine the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and sugar. Add the cold butter pieces to the flour mixture, and roughly mix with a wooden spoon, making sure not to break up or soften the butter. Add the bacon, blue cheese and parsley, and toss until evenly mixed.

2. Pour 1 cup buttermilk into the flour mixture, and gently stir with the wooden spoon. Stir in the remaining ½ cup buttermilk until the dough comes together. Do not overmix.

3. With a large ice-cream scoop, spoon 10 heaping mounds of dough onto the prepared baking sheet, gently pressing down with the scoop while releasing the dough onto the baking sheet. Bake for 7 minutes. Turn the oven temperature down to 325°, and bake until the biscuits are golden brown, about 18 additional minutes. Let cool on the pan for 5 minutes before serving.

The perfect day for Scott Foley and his children Malina, 5, Keller, 3, and Konrad, 7 months? "Make pancakes and let the kids eat in front of the TV. Then go to the pool," says the Scandal star, 42. "I am teaching Keller to swim, and he's doing it without floaties!" Things are a bit chaotic since he and wife Marika Dominczyk, 34, welcomed their third child: "He's amazing, but it's a lot." Mark
FEUERSTEIN
with Frisco, Adelaide
& Lila

With three children—Lila, 8, Frisco, 7, and Adelaide, 5—bounding around at home, there's never a dull moment in the Feuerstein household. "They are so unique," says Mark Feuerstein, 44, star of USA's Royal Pains (Tuesdays at 10 p.m.). "Lila is a sensitive soul," says the actor. "Frisco leaps before he looks in life, and Addie is just so funny." On the weekends the L.A.-based actor and wife Dana Klein, 41, "love going to the farmers' market or walking to get ice cream or sushi" with their kids. "We love eating as a family!" —MELODY CHIU

Hugh Dancy

The actor, 39, returns in the season premiere of NBC's Hannibal on June 4

Last time I went black tie

I went to the Met Gala, which is such a fashiony event that if you have any appetite for black-tie stuff, it deals with that for the whole year.

Last time I was starstruck

That would be also at the Met Gala, with George Clooney. What was striking was that he's so personable that you don't really feel starstruck, and then afterward you're like, "Oh, I guess I should have felt odder about that!"

Last time I said 'I'm sorry'

I do it all the time! It would have to [be to] my wife [Claire Danes]. Who else do you apologize to [more] than the person you share your life with?

Last song I sang out loud

Probably "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star." It was to my son [Cyrus, 2½]. I think he likes it. I've taken his silence to be approving, but maybe he's just waiting to tell me how he feels when he can speak.

Last sunburn

Just a couple of weeks ago. We had a little mother-and-father getaway to Santa Barbara. You know when you only get one day of sun so you kind of throw yourself at it? That's what I did.
